Charting a course toward new partnerships with the sprawling healthcare sector requires time. Our guide, “A Healthcare Playbook for Community Developers,” can help provide clarity and put you on the path to new partnerships. As one community development practitioner interviewed for our playbook noted, “It can take a year to get a meeting with the right person, and even more years to create a common foundation for action.”

These steps provide key questions and resources for navigating the complex healthcare ecosystem and build a foundation for addressing health at a more comprehensive scale. No matter where you are in the process, our checklist will help you assess your existing or emerging partnership or create a roadmap for embarking on an entirely new collaboration.
