1. Hawaii

- Difference between income needed vs. actual income: $39,915

Hawaii is the most expensive state to live in: The average annual expenditures total $111,892, with $55,946 needed to cover necessities and $33,568 needed for discretionary spending. The median household income of $71,977 — the fourth highest in the U.S. — isn't enough to cover those two costs, even without putting anything away for savings.

If you find yourself living paycheck to paycheck in Hawaii or any other state, follow these survival tips.
